ARTICLE 2—FOOD SERVICE WARE WASTE REDUCTION

SEC. 5477. Findings.

The City Council of the City of Arcata finds and declares the following:

A. The City has established waste reduction, greenhouse gas reduction and stormwater pollution prevention goals to conserve resources, reduce GHG emissions, waste, litter and marine pollution to protect public health and safety, the City's natural environment, and wildlife, all of which increase the quality of life for residents and visitors.

B. Effective ways to reduce waste, litter and marine pollution is to encourage the use of reusable, recyclable, and biodegradable packaging materials. Biodegradable products decay, causing less harm to the environment and the landscape of the City than non-biodegradable disposable products.

C. Polystyrene food service ware, often referred to by the trademark term "Styrofoam," is highly durable, buoyant, lightweight and non-biodegradable; is easily windblown, and can become litter even when placed into trashcans. Once in the environment, these wastes persist and detract from the appearance of the area, and pollute waterways and Humboldt Bay longer than many other types of litter.

D. Styrene, a component of polystyrene, is a known hazardous substance that medical evidence and the Food and Drug Administration suggest leaches from polystyrene containers into food and drink; and, is a suspected carcinogen and neurotoxin which potentially threatens human health.

E. The California Integrated Waste Management Board estimates that Californians use 165,000 tons of expanded polystyrene (foam and Styrofoam® products) each year for packaging and food service purposes. A 2004 study by the Waste Management Board ranked the environmental impacts from both the manufacturing and disposal of polystyrene second highest after aluminum in the categories of energy consumption, greenhouse gas emissions and total environmental effect.

F. Prohibiting the use of polystyrene food service ware and replacing it with food service ware that is reusable, biodegradable, compostable or recyclable; and, restricting the use of polystyrene products that are not wholly encapsulated or encased by a more durable material will protect local waterways, Humboldt Bay and will support the City's goal of reducing waste and litter.
